Total content of nerve growth factor \(NGF\) and basic fibroblast growth factor \(b-FGF\) in the tibia of the rats on the 21st day of their ontogenesis were investigated by the method of radioimmunoassay. The evolution of the content of the neurotrophic factors in the compact bone of the tibia during the processes of its growth was also](#) analyzed. It was shown that the content of NGF in the compact bone increased from the 8th day to the 21st day and constituted 58% of the total content of the growth factor in the tibia. The content of b-FGF in the compact bone increased during this period and constituted 23% of the total content of the growth factor. The content of NGF in the tibia increased since the 8th day but amounted to a bit more than 30% of the total content of the neurotrophic factor in this bone. The content of b-FGF increased since the 8th day, but its share in the total content of the growth factor increased about 15 times during this period. Skating world shocked at Lillehammer Competitors at the 1994 Olympic Games were shocked to discover, on arrival in Lillehammer, that they had to enter the Olympic village from a gate on the wrong side of the road. For too many people, the Winter Games have traditionally been an opportunity to celebrate Britain's great sporting achievements - and their successors in another continent have now made it clear that they have little time for such a mockery of international competition. ChangeÂ .Q: Implementing a Rails method with the Find method returns no results I have a User model with 50 of them. Each user has many projects, so in my UsersController I have def search @users = User.find(params[:id])

@users.projects.find(params[:id]) end`
and in my view I'm trying to display a list
of all the users with ... but it's returning empty. Where am I going wrong?

Thanks. A: All those lines are actually a bit inefficient, when you can firstly find the project, and then loop through the users: `@users = User.find(params[:id])`

@project =
@users.projects.find(params[:id])
@users.each do |user| ... end (module

I am aware that it is a very old thread. But a some of us still have the same issue. I even tried to create a new project and to use the new font but still no luck. BTW: I am running on MacOS 10.11.4. A: It is very strange. I created new project and used Astute VectorScribe of type: Document Type: Text/Comic Script For all! As a result I received the command in my document. Which is the text I have entered into: Q: How to add JS file with ajax to a HTML page? I am trying to add jquery-latest.js file using Ajax, but the script is not working. So the problem is because I am adding the script tag before closing the body tag, which is not correct! Script runs well if I put all the scripts below the body tag. Here is my code: var id =

'new'; $.ajax({ url: "", data: {scriptName:
  id }, cache: false, success: function (result) { var asset, script =
  document.createElement("script");
    script.src = "";
